Section 85/A

- (1) In the case of a waiver of right to trial (CP, Chapter XXV) the provisions of Subsections (1)-(2) of Section 85 shall be authoritative, whereby for multiple counts of criminal acts the primary punishment shall be imposed based on the highest sentence prescribed in Section 87/C for such crimes.
- (2) In the case of waiver of right to trial (Chapter XXV of CP), if the law prescribes imprisonment for a specific term in respect of at least two of the crimes included in the multiple count of criminal acts, the maximum sentence prescribed in Section 87/C shall be increased by one-half, however it may not reach the sum total of the sentences which may be imposed for such crimes pursuant to Section 87/C.

Only one supplementary punishment may be inflicted as an independent punishment.

Suspension of the Execution of a Punishment

Section 89

(1) The execution of an imprisonment not exceeding one year or of a fine may be suspended for probation, if it may be supposed on well-founded grounds - especially with regard to the personal circumstances of the perpetrator -, that the aim of the punishment may also be achieved without the execution thereof.

(2) In a case deserving special appreciation the execution of an imprisonment longer than one year but not exceeding two years may also be suspended.

(3) The period of probation of a fine shall be one year; imprisonment imposed for a misdemeanor offense may be suspended for a period of one to three years, while imprisonment imposed for a felony offense may be suspended for a period of two to five years probation. The period of probation shall be set forth in years and may not be less than the term of imprisonment imposed.

(4) If a perpetrator is sentenced several times to the punishment of the same type, suspended for probation, and the period of probation of no one of the punishments has elapsed, then the probation period of the previous punishment shall be extended up to the elapse of the period of probation of the latter punishment.

(5) If an imprisonment is executed on a perpetrator, for which the execution of a suspended punishment may not be ordered, the period of probation shall be extended by the duration of the imprisonment.

 - (3) An imprisonment substituting a fine or labour in the public interest (Section 50, Section 52) may not be summed up to a sum total of punishments.

Section 94

- (1) In case of the summing up of imprisonments to be executed in different degrees, the sum total of punishments shall be executed in the most severe degree. However, if the duration of the sum total of punishments is three years or more, or, in case of a multiple recidivist, two or more years, the execution degree of the sum total of punishments shall be defined taking this into account.
- (2) If the degree of execution to be established by the application of subsection (1) would constitute an iniquitous disadvantage for the convict, a degree one step more lenient may be established.

Section 95

Section 96

(1) Supplementary punishments may not be summed up, and similarly, an imprisonment substituting a fine may not be summed up either.

(2) From among the supplementary punishments of the same duration - with the exception of fine as supplementary punishment - that one shall be executed which is more disadvantageous for the convict. This shall also govern supplementary punishments applied in lieu of a principal punishment.

Provisions Relating to Special and Multiple Recidivists

(2) For the purposes of inclusion, one day of preliminary detention shall correspond to one day of community service or to one day's worth of fine.

(3) For the inclusion of house arrest, one day of community service or one day's worth of fine shall correspond to one day, and one day of imprisonment shall, depending on the degree of security of the imprisonment, correspond to three to five days of house arrest as consistent with court decision.

(4) If any duration of house arrest remains after the inclusion under Subsection (3), it shall be counted as one day of imprisonment.
